Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri led in the number of applications. Illinois teachers submitted 188 applications; Indiana, 73; Iowa, 47; and Missouri, 34. There were 104 applications from 30 other states.

Chief Of Police, Two More Resign; Carter Temp. Head

Mayor William Woods announced Thursday the resignations of the Charleston police chief and two other members of the force.

The resignation of Billy G. Phipps as chief of police became effective at 2 p.m. Friday, when his daily shift ended. Phipps had been on the force since Jan. 1, 1958, and had served as chief since June 1, 1961.

Sgt. Leo Carter, a nine-year veteran of the police department, has been named acting police chief. He assumed his new duties Friday.

Others resigning were Capt. Logan Cox and Patrolman Max Robison. Cox, a member of the force for 16 years, resigned, effective Friday, to accept a position on the Bement police department.

Robison, whose resignation became effective last Friday, said he was going to Arizona.

Vacancies on the police department, with the exception of chief, are normally filled from eligibility lists maintained by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners.

Psychiatrists File Manwaring Exams With Circuit Court

Two court-appointed psychiatrists have filed reports in Coles County Circuit Court and with State's Attorney Ralph D. Glenn declaring a former Eastern student to be a sexually dangerous person.

Glenn said Dr. R. C. Arnold, Ashmore, and Dr. Groves Smith, Godfrey, have filed findings after examining John P. Manwaring, 23, Tuscola.

Manwaring waived action by the grand jury in a Feb. 23 circuit court hearing held before Judge Harry I. Hannah on charges of taking indecent liberties with a child.

As a result of a petition filed by Glenn, the court appointed the two psychiatrists to examine Manwaring.

Glenn said no date has been set for the court hearing of the evidence.

According to tournament rules, the squads changed sides on the question each round.

Election Procedures Of Senate Groups . . .

Demonstrate Need For Control

With the coming of the Senate officer elections next week, another series of elections of equal importance takes place—the contests in which various Senate organizations will elect their respective representatives for two-year terms.

During the past few years, there have been many complaints that poor planning and organization have resulted in muddled results. A general lack of knowledge and/or interest on the part of the student body have often complicated the situation.

Following an unfortunate misunderstanding centering around last year's Senate officer election, a general revamping of election rules resulted—a revamping which assuredly will contribute to better elections.

Unfortunately, however, the election procedures for choosing organizational representatives to the Senate are still left almost entirely to the discretion of the member groups.

Consequently, a hodge-podge of miscellaneous rules, regulations, customs and chance happenings govern the selection of senators. Some organizations undoubtedly exercise good judgment in conducting their elections. Others, however, leave much to be desired.

Some students have complained that in four years of school, they have never once been able to find when, where or if their department conducted a senatorial election.

One individual, slightly luckier, claims to have finally found his department's polling place 10 minutes before the voting deadline. One can imagine his surprise when he discovered his own name on the ballot. Shortly thereafter, he was notified that he had been elected to the Student Senate.

There have also been rumors that some faculty members have, in the past, simply appointed senators because they did not want the bother of having an election.

Some of these gripes are undoubtedly legitimate; others are not. However, the number of complaints would seem to justify the Senate studying the problem to see if more rigid control of organizational elections is not needed.

The results of such a study, to us, would seem inevitable.

Graduating High School Seniors . . .

Need Goals For College Life

The News would like to express a special greeting to the high school seniors who will be on Eastern's campus tomorrow as guests of the University.

Eastern offers to the students it serves a University strong in curriculum, an ever increasing physical plant, rising academic standards and a spirit of pride in the school which may be readily seen.

Yet, the faculty, the facilities and all that is Eastern will not be enough to make a good student or produce a fine citizen. The University can only aid in this maturation process. The real "growing up" must come from within the individual.

It is important that any prospective college student examine himself in an attempt to determine his values, his goals and his ideals.

Without a sound purpose for coming to college, one will never reap the full rewards that may be found from a university. It is, in a sense, imperative that incoming freshmen know what they desire in an education, and, perhaps even more importantly, why they want an education.

The senior seeking a school where social life and extra-curricular activities form the bulk of the university's existence will be disappointed in Eastern. The student desiring an "easy" school, one at which almost anyone can get through, will find that Eastern is not the school for him.

The person, however, earnestly seeking to better himself, truly desiring to prepare himself for a rewarding life's work, will find Eastern the type of school he wants to attend.

Again, the News welcomes the seniors to campus and hopes their brief stay here will give them a better insight into college life.

Viewing The Scene

by Joe Bangiolo

It may be true that one of the most misunderstood terms is "physical fitness." The term "physical education" is perhaps more closely associated with campus life—and this term also may be somewhat misused. The difficulty arises from the fact that these areas have multiple functions.

The opinions of college students concerning these areas may be grouped. Many students are "Gung-Ho" — sports enthusiasts and not particularly interested in physical fitness as such. Others "couldn't care less." There is still a third group—concerned, but not active.

It might be felt that "sports" and physical fitness are exactly the same. Certainly they do not exist separately. Importantly, physical fitness is necessary to health and well-being. Sports may be viewed in a dual capacity: one, that of being a severe detriment (the spectator variety) and two, that as the means of securing physical fitness (participation types).

It is often true that "sports-lovers" are merely spectators. Indeed, it might be observed that one of the more important functions of sports or athletics is to provide "Participation - Recreation."

Although many people talk a great deal about "physical fitness"—the facts may be easily seen—few college students exhibit signs of adequate physical education. Many college students seem only interested in the latest feats of the professional athlete and the antics of "T.V. sportsmen."

Many reasons for the lack of participation may be conjured up. Perhaps many people—college students particularly—recognize that only a very few individuals will be "successful" athletes. The resultant fear or dislike of failure prohibits them from participation.

And as usual, even political "football" is played with the issues. Are American youth "unfit" for the military? There is even some lip-service being given to preparing Americans for the "new leisure."

At one time it was said, "The business of America is business." It may now be modified to—the work of Americans is play—push-button's, Si; push-ups, No!

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Through The Forest

. . . with Jon Woods

The new quarter has begun, let's hope, on a bright note washing away the plaguing memories of last quarter's disillusionment. The next weeks will see several changes from minor to very major ones.

Look for a last-minute scramble to get nominees for upcoming Senate offices. Thus far, little interest has been shown, due in part to a general belief that a couple of strong leaders from the Senate will run. Don't be surprised if the main would-be contenders fail to petition. If this happens, there may well develop a last-minute rush to form presidential timber out of shavings.

Another area of behind-the-scenes in-fighting lies in the manipulation going on now to secure Student - Faculty board seats. Pressure, friendship and glib talk are applied on several fronts to win the "spoils." Big-time, coalition-backed politicians use the same techniques, of course, except for the element of naivety and polish.

In all probability, the administration will continue its "down" on violators of University rules and regulations. Expectants to be checked for in an attempt to rid unbecoming housing of Eastern students.

Illegal drinking may draw more attention from EIU and local law enforcement agencies.

If more stringent administration for all to the rules continues, look for John Ley's (chief security officer) role to become increasingly important. His ground in law enforcement has already been valuable to the administration and police and his position is likely to take on new behind-the-scenes meaning.

Also, look for Jon Woods' limb sawed out from him if one of these "presidential" candidates goes astray!

Here, There And Everywhere

College Students Must Take Share Of Responsibility

It is now that time of year when most freshmen and sophomores are promising themselves in earnest to improve their marks this coming semester, while the majority of junior and senior students are only doing it half-heartedly because they know better.

By now they have their college routines fairly well fixed, and they know that it is rather difficult to alter them. The only trouble seems to be the fact that most students level off on a plane that is usually below the level of their potential accomplishments.

Some of the reasons for not studying are obvious: extra-curricular activities, jobs and boredom with courses or college in general. But another one is laziness, which may either be inherent or due to a lack of personal purpose. If it is inherent, there is not much that can be done by anyone.

On the other hand, a sense of purpose is something that can and should be acquired and developed, not only for personal benefit but also for the benefit of the community and nation.

If we really want to eradicate ignorance, poverty, the misuse of political power and mediocrity in our ideals, it is imperative that everyone be willing to accept his share of responsibility with a strong and cheerful mind and to guard against dishonesty in purpose and deed.

If we do this, nothing material can be guaranteed, but at least we can walk down the streets of America or, for that matter, the streets of any country in the world, and be able to look people in the eye, unashamed and unafraid.—Upsala Gazette

United States, Russia Have Too Much Power, Famed Correspondent Says

The road to total disarmament is the only road that leads to peace to the world, said winning foreign correspondent William L. Shirer as he addressed the students of Eastern Illinois University.

Russia and America possess more than five times the clear power necessary to dominate each other, and in fact Shirer said, Red China to a nuclear power. If the world is to be saved, total disarmament must be accomplished.

Shirer suggested that the United States join with Germany and the West in the common market, because the political unity that is bound to parallel economic unity will be important to the future of the West.

Concluding his speech, Shirer admitted that America has made some mistakes, but that it has made some splendid ones of which we can be proud. We have not done a bad job. The Eastern Echo, Eastern Illinois University

Our Readers Speak

I have just finished reading your article in yesterday's (Feb. 13) News with great interest and to thank you for showing respect in law enforcement. I must add, however, that I sincerely disapprove of the old provolone "mud slinging" which you used in the article. Sheriff Phipps and his department has been cooperative with our department in the past and we hope to have this cooperation in the future.

The activities of February 1962 were performed by members of this department only. Other departments were not asked to assist us in the fact that we feel we have adequate personnel to perform certain duties ourselves.

I am quite sure that if Sheriff Phipps had been asked for his assistance that he would have done so without fail. His duties in the city are numerous and he is oversupplied with deputies to assist him in these duties. Law enforcement is one thing and cooperation is needed by all, personally, believe that our department should attend to law enforcement, whenever possible, in the city limits itself.

However, there are times when it becomes necessary to ask the assistance of the Sheriff's department and the State of Illinois Police. We do rely on the University Campus Policemen to assist in a great many details.

Again, I wish to thank you but I should express my disapproval at the same time.

Very truly yours,
Charles G. Phipps,
Chief of Police

Editor's Note: Phipps resigned effective last Friday, as Charleston police chief.)

Gentlemen:

As a former resident of Coles Co., I have followed with interest the articles in the various Coles Co. papers concerning the recent removal of slot machines from three clubs.

Coles Co. Sheriff William Cox got permission to have a letter from Billy G. Phipps, the Charleston chief of police, to Ken Fish, editor of the Eastern State News, printed in the Charleston paper.

In a note printed with Phipps' letter, Cox said he thought there were some things the people should know. Well, there are some things I would like to know too:

1. Why didn't the sheriff take the slots out of the two Coles Co. clubs the state police raided almost two years ago?

2. Why weren't the slots removed by some law agency before such a long period elapsed?

3. Why didn't the sheriff write his own reply to Mr. Fish's letters and editorial comment?

4. Does the resignation of the Charleston chief of police have anything to do with the gambling raids?

5. Are there any more clubs in Coles Co. which are still violating gambling or liquor laws?

Bruce Shaeffer

Dear Editor:

For a half hour recently the Chamber Singers, a group of students from Eastern's music department, sang to an audience of some two or three thousand persons in Chicago.

The audience consisted of presidents, deans and faculty members.

Merigis Article Lists Principles Of School Authority Delegation

An article entitled "Delegation in School Administration" by Harry Merigis, director of the school of elementary and junior high school teaching, appears in the March issue of the American

Harry Merigis

School Board Journal.

Merigis, in describing the nature of delegation of authority in schools, outlines 10 principles of effective delegation:

- Delegation requires administrator to discipline himself from the desire to act arbitrarily.
- The superior must be willing to accept criticism and subordinate to say what seems important.
- He must have faith in his subordinates.
- He must be willing to risk his standing on the performance of subordinates.
- He must be able to make intelligent analysis of situations.
- The administrator must be consistent in applying the principle of delegation.
- The superior must be ready to provide assistance to subordinates when needed.
- Methods of enforcement must not be harsh.
- The superior should work appropriate to his administrative level.
- The administrator should be familiar with the way the work of all subordinates fits into the broad context of his superior's responsibility.

Vienna Boys Choir Draws 1700

by Joel Hendricks

An estimated 1700 persons attended the Vienna Choir Boys concert last Wednesday in Lantz Gymnasium. Jon Hopkins, chairman of the Artist Series Board, said the audience was the biggest and most enthusiastically responsive he had seen at an Artist Series presentation.

Roman Zeilinger, director and pianist for the boys, complained that the piano was greatly out of tune, stating, "It should be burned!" Hopkins said the piano had been tuned that morning.

Nevertheless, Zeilinger and the 22 boys, smartly dressed in mid-century blouses, captivated the crowd with selections by Gallus, Verdi, Kodaly, Mozart and Strauss; but the highlight of the performance was the presentation of a comic opera, "Herr und Madame Denis."

The choir is limited to 60 boys in Vienna, ranging in age from eight to 14. The troupe of 22 who make three-month tours are aged 10 to 14.

Zeilinger said the boys remain in the choir until their voices change, when they are given scholarships to finish their schooling. "Not so many boys continue studying music as people think, though," he said.

Three tutors travel with the boys while they are on tour. One, a woman, sees to it that the boys stay on a regular eating schedule and acts as a "substitute mother."

After singing each number and two encores in German, the boys sang the third encore in English. To the audience's delight they sang, "Goot night Ladiez, . . ."

ElU Summer Theatre Program Scheduled For June 4 - Aug. 10

Eastern's third annual summer theatre program has been scheduled to run from June 4 through August 10.

The Summer Theatre group will present three major productions during the ten-week period. Three selections will be chosen from the following titles: "Bus Stop," "Summer and Smoke," "Streetcar Named Desire," "My Three Angels," "The Member of the Wedding," "The Ring and the Book," and "Boy With a Cart."

The Summer Theatre program is a curricular program devoted to the presentation of drama especially chosen to provide the student body, faculty and community with vital and entertaining theatre in a variety of forms, styles and types.

The program is open to high school graduates about to enter college, students currently enrolled in college, teachers now directing theatre activities who feel the need for further specialized training, and any others who qualify for admission to the University and desire summer theatre experience.

Among those areas of dramatic study being emphasized are acting technique, stage movement and fencing, stage lighting, scene design and stage-craft, house and stage management and voice and diction.

Eastern's Four Spring Sports Begin Practice

Baseball Team Opens Season With Ind. State

Eastern's four spring sports began practice officially last week in preparation for their respective campaigns.

Baseball Coach Jack Kaley said the weather was keeping the players inside, but he expects the weather to clear up soon. With 11 lettermen returning, prospects look bright for the baseballers.

The baseball team opens a 34-game schedule with a double-header against Indiana State March 31 at home. Eastern's trackmen began official practice March 5.

With 11 lettermen back, the track squad looks hopeful. The thinclads open their eight-meet schedule April 10 at Bradley as they face the Braves in a dual meet.

Coach Maynard "Pat" O'Brien said the tracksters have strength in some events but lack sprinters and depth in other events.

Tennis players began practice March 5 also, and have been doing mostly indoor work. Coach Rex Darling said, "With only four returning lettermen, this will be a building year."

Facing the University of Illinois at Champaign April 11, the racketeers begin their 10-match season. The match with Illinois is new to Eastern's schedule this year.

Coach Hop Pinther's golfers have also been having difficulty with the weather. The golfers play 12 matches this season, opening against Illinois State at Normal April 7.

According to John Masley, athletic director, the schedules for the spring sports were passed by the Men's Athletic Board Monday.

Season Statistics For B'ball Team Released By EIU

Final statistics released for the basketball season show Lloyd "Bat" Eggers leading in scoring and rebounding. The 6-3 Toledo junior tallied 362 points for an average of 15.7 points a game.

He also pulled down 9.7 rebounds a game. Dick "Hoagy" Carmichael, 6-1 junior from Decatur, finished 2nd in scoring with an 11.8 point-a-game average.

Larry Weck, 5-10 junior from Robinson, sank 52 of 61 free throws to lead that department with an .852 percentage. Bill Geurin, 6-2 freshman from Peoria, was the leading marksman from the field, shooting at a .423 clip. He also ranked 2nd in free throw accuracy with an .800 average.

As a team the Panthers averaged 73.3 points a game. They shot .354 from the field and .662 from the charity line. On the boards, they averaged 49.0 rebounds a game.

Two EIU Players Selected For IIAC All-Star 2nd Team

Lloyd "Bat" Eggers and Dick "Hoagy" Carmichael of Eastern were named to the 2nd All-IIAC basketball squad.

Carmichael, who ranked 3rd in conference scoring boasting a 15.3 point-a-game average, finished behind Western's Coleman Carrodine (17.4) and Northern's George Bork (20.2). Eggers ranked 7th in rebounding, picking off 9.5 rebounds a game.

Rounding out the 2nd all-conference team were Ken VanDyke and Dave Nelson of Central Michigan and Dale Haywood of ISNU.

Heading the first team selections was Northern's George Bork, who was voted the IIAC's most valuable player. Other selections were Southern's Ed Spila and Dave Henson and Western's Coleman Carrodine and Dick Redlinger.

Conference statistics also show the Panthers' Bill Geurin ranked 4th in free throw accuracy, shooting at an .826 clip from the free throw line.

Three Wins Round Out Cage Play

Winning three of their last games, Eastern's Panthers ended the season with an 11-4 record.

The Panthers' record slightly better than last 10-13 record. Their 6-6 IIAC record, which is identical to year's conference record, the Panthers 4th in the conference.

The last four games played on the road. Following the Panthers dropped a 66 decision to Eastern Michigan at Ypsilanti as "Hoagy" Carmichael fired 15 points.

With freshman Bob scoring 17 points, the Panthers downed Central Michigan the following night at Mt. Pleasant.

Racking up their highest of the season, the Panthers edged Millikin 111-77 Feb. 28 at Decatur. Lloyd "Bat" Eggers led his best performance of the year, connecting on 16 of 20 goals and totaling 37 points.

Winding up the season Eastern topped Lewis College 84-73 at Lockport March 1. In the Lewis encounter, Eggers again led the scoring attack as he pumped in 20 points.

For the brief half hour, these students and their conductor were Eastern to all of these people.

It was a memorable occasion; it is seldom that this kind of program commands the rapt attention shown by the audience; it was pleasant to have friends from all over the country say afterward, "Eastern must be a fine school."

The dozen or more of us who heard the concert were proud to be from Eastern.

This is significant to all of us, for the people who heard the concert will for a long time associate Eastern with quality.

It is a truth we are all richer when students do something fine, as we are all a little poorer when students conduct or performance is less than worthy.

Eastern owes an expression of gratitude to the singers, their conductor and all of the students and faculty of the music department who had a part in, or at least lent their moral support to, the project.

Book Thieves Take 19 Econ Volumes

All but one of the 20 books placed in a bookcase in the third floor corridor of Blair Hall by the economics faculty have been stolen, according to Raymond A. Plath, head of the social science department.

The volumes were donated early in the school year for the convenience of students who might want to use them for reference or further study, Plath said.

Plath said, "The books that were put out there are books we could afford to lose. Therefore, the faculty feels no personal loss. The loss is a loss suffered by future students."

"This experiment in providing supplementary readings in economics has failed," Plath continued. "Naturally, we are very reluctant to make additional books available, because we feel they too will be stolen."
